

li 'h' O((VcY dkZgi] Z eVhi YZXVYZ! i] Z g/iZ d[Y'hea/XZb Zci] Vh Xdci 'ej ZY 'hj el VgY ig'cY#GZXdgY cj b VZgh d[eZdeaZ] VkZ cdl VZZc [dgXZY id a'VkZ i] Z'g] db Zh Yj Z id i] Z 'ciZghZXi 'e\ YgkZgh d[ Xdc[aXi! eZghZXj i 'dc! hZgdj h] j b Vc g\] ih Wj/hZh VcY i] Z Z[[ZXih d[Xab ViZ X] Vc\Z VcY Y'hVhi Zgh#
B Vcn VgZ 'ciZgcVan Y'hea/XZY! Vji di] Zgh] VkZ XgdlhhZY 'ciZgcVi 'dcVaVdgyZgh VcY VgZ h] ZaZgc\ 'c cZ^] Vdij g'e\ Xdj cigZh#

6Xgdlhh i] Z <adVWaCdg]! i] ZgZ] Vh VZZc I 'YZhegZYVY iV Z"j e d[edaX'Zh i] Vi XdciV'e Vhnj b hZZ` Zgh 'c i] Z <adVWaHdj i] #; dgi] dhZ [Zl I] d Yd hj XXZZY 'c g'VX] 'e\ i] Z <adVWaCdg]! egliZXi 'dcj

Key takeaways

?

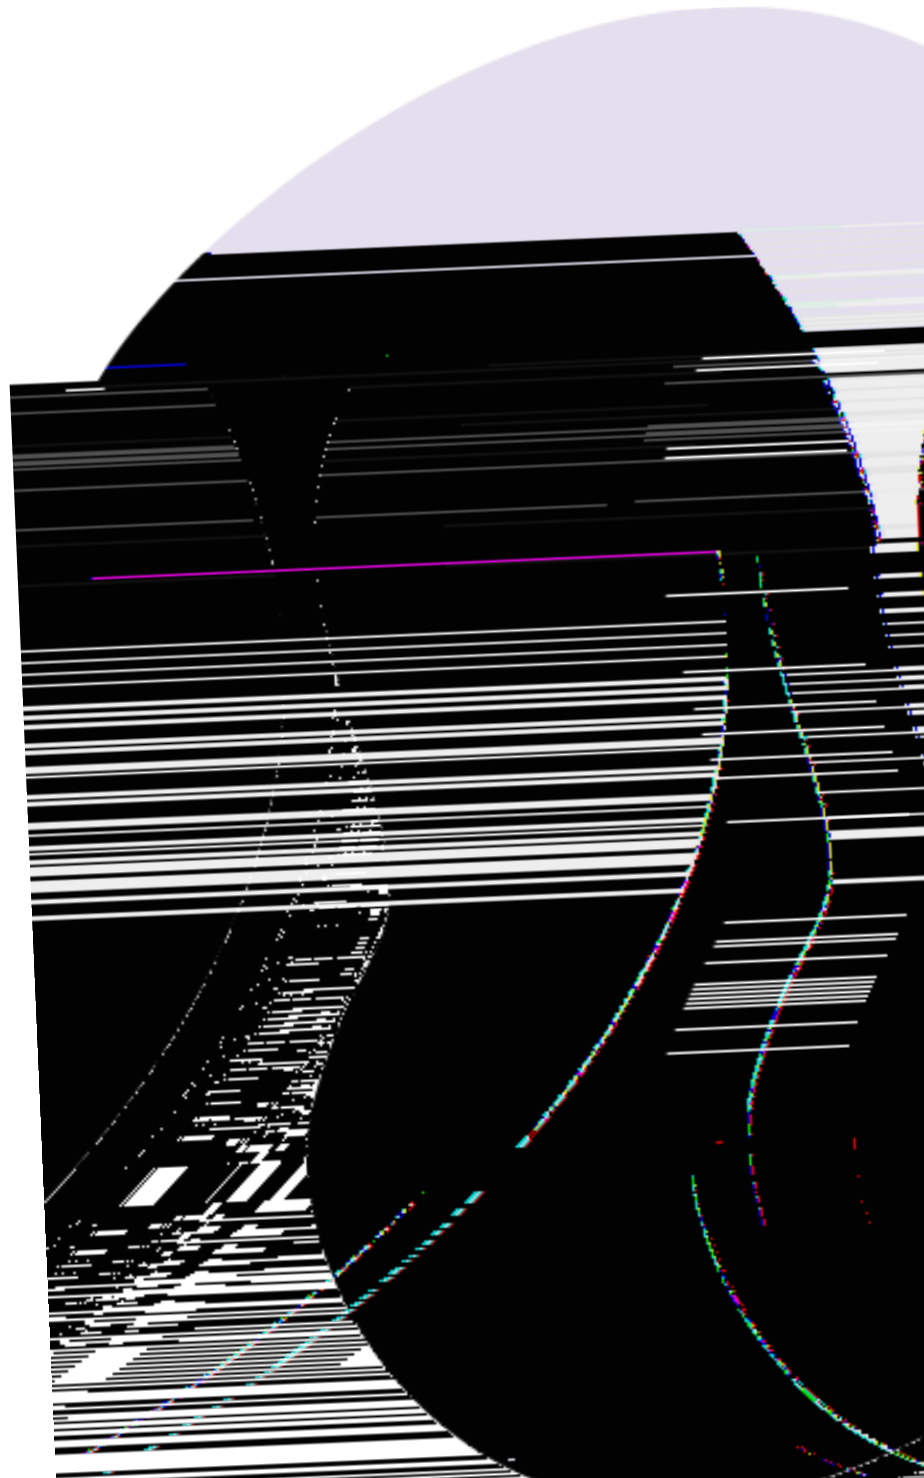

The scenario

It is 2033 and the factors driving people from their homes are becoming increasingly complex and interconnected. Persecution, armed conflict, the impacts of climate change and disasters, growing food insecurity and human rights violations intersect to create mixed movements of people in search of international protection, livelihood opportunities and a more dignified existence. In this context, the task of distinguishing those eligible for international protection from those who are not has become increasingly challenging.

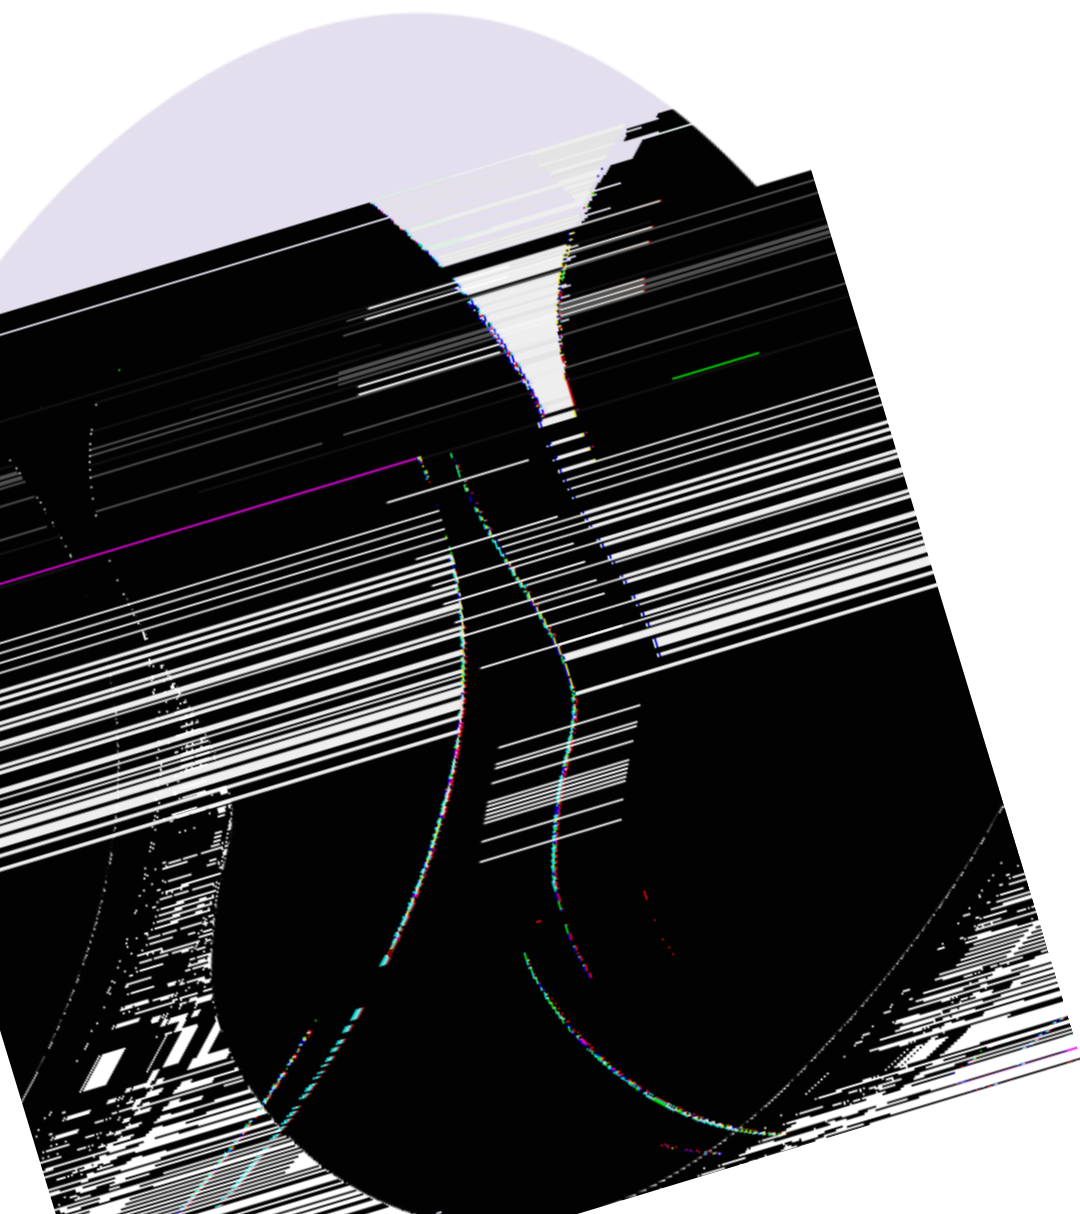

Across both the Global North and South, access to robust individualised refugee status determination procedures

- Regulators need to enforce existing laws, which tend to be technology-neutral. For instance, anti-discrimination laws prevent discrimination against an applicant regardless of whether the decision-maker is a human or AI.
- Privately developed technology that has a public impact cannot be left unaccountable, yet even regulators find themselves challenged in making sense of the technology. Reform must ensure not only that information is open to the public, but also that regulators are provided with the means to undertake a technical assessment and interrogate the technological systems.
- Technology companies have in some cases pulled back from developing tools that governments could use to cause serious harm, but lines need to be drawn by the public, governments

Better acknowledging diverse refugee experiences and narratives is essential for building genuine dialogue, understanding and solidarity.

- W e e ef gee a e ed ec g b da de ce a ca- eda, ef gee a e

We need to develop comprehensive strategies that recognize the interconnected nature of our global challenge: addressing individual and collective inefficiencies. We must build anicipatory approaches that combine the effectiveness of individual action and innovation.

efficiencie . We hold

emic

realie .

nie to ef gee and be e .

Thank y

